My Food, My Future Short Video Contest

Improving food security and nutrition is critical to meeting the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), but the world is not on track to end hunger and malnutrition by 2030.

How can we accelerate progress in transforming agri-food systems to meet the needs of the hungry and malnourished?

IFPRI and FAO are bringing together decision makers, practitioners, researchers, and other stakeholders from around the world to answer this critical question.

As part of our three-day global event in Bangkok, Thailand, you are invited to submit a 1–2 minute video that offers ideas and tools that can help reduce hunger and malnutrition right away. Your video submission should connect to your own life or community and inspire action.

Eligibility: The video competition is open to young filmmakers from all over the world. Applicants must be between the ages of 10 and 25 at the time of submission. The contest is divided into two age-based categories: 10–17 and 18–25.

Selection and Prizes: Selections will be based on a video's success in presenting ideas and inspiring action toward quickly ending hunger and malnutrition. A panel of senior representatives from IFPRI and FAO along with film industry professionals will select the winning entries. Winners will be announced November 28, 2018, at the global event in Bangkok.

A winner and two runners-up will be selected for each age category. The winning entry in each category will receive a $500 gift card, and each of the four runners-up will receive a $250 gift card.

Submission Deadline: October 29, 2018.
